“ Alyssa and I were childhood friends, one of my best friends, but later in high school we slowly started to drift and after graduation didn't talk at all, until one day years later she friends me on snapchat to congratulate me on the birth of my son. I was shocked because we hadn't talked in so long, but it meant so much because I had a hard post-partum. I am extra grateful for those texts we exchanged for those few days because I will have something of my own to cherish from her. She was such a bright soul and still is, probably the shiniest star in the night sky now. I'm stunned by this sudden loss and will be praying for her family. Just know she will be with all of us in all the ways we need her and miss her. Heaven gained a new angel to help watch over all of us.
