“ My thoughts turn to you Greg, my true friend. I took you for granted. I felt like I had so little of my own, maybe I didn't know how to give, to help. I still cherish the times we had, in Portland, Berkeley, and traveling, the peak experiences of our impoverished youths. Rambling around in the morning of this life, none the wiser, perhaps the true suffering yet to come. God keep you.

“ I worked for a time with Greg, during his Tennessee days. He was a gifted and memorable character, with his heights and his depths, to say the least! He beat his own drum, walked his own walk, and left a mark in my heart, for sure. He lived in one life more than most could squeeze out of two, or three, or ten!
