“ *The first time I ever met Skip was in NC. Chad and I had been dating for about 6 months. I think Chad was nervous about us meeting because Skip and I both have big personalities, and we're both always right. We pulled up to the house in my pickup truck which I was driving. When we hopped out, I heard Skip's voice from the porch upstairs yelling, "You know not to let him drive that truck!" I yelled back, "You don't see him driving it do, ya?" When we went upstairs Chad caught up with his mom and I sat with Skip for an hour talking about politics, religion, and the state of the world. Chad came out to check on me and we told him to buzz off, we were talking. I always loved that about Skip. He was easy for me to talk to. He got me when a lot of people don't. He didn't think I was radical, or naive. He just got me. I'm glad that I got to experience that acceptance from someone who did the have to like me. I'll miss him. Much love to my family. Thanks for letting me be a part of it . -
